About the workshop

This two-day workshop explores how 3D documentation and digital heritage materials can move beyond technical preservation to become tools for public engagement, education and advocacy.

Through case studies from Ukraine and Europe, participants look at how 3D scans, photogrammetry, archival materials and digital reconstructions can become narratives, exhibitions and online experiences. Particular attention is given to protecting and communicating Ukrainian heritage during Russia's full-scale war.

Safety

Due to Russia's full-scale war against Ukraine, air raid alerts and power or connectivity disruptions may occur during the event. In case of an alert, the workshop is paused and participants proceed to the nearest shelter together with the organisers, in line with safety regulations. The programme resumes after the all-clear, and the schedule may be adjusted on site. Please install an air raid alert app and follow the organisers' announcements.

Workshop highlights

01

Turn 3D scans, reconstructions and archival materials into storytelling concepts

02

Design exhibition and online narratives for diverse audiences

03

Communicate endangered heritage and support international advocacy

04

For: heritage professionals, museum staff, researchers, students, 3D specialists, communicators and civil society organisations. No prior 3D experience required.

3D-4CH Competence Centre

PRESERVATION · EDUCATION · INNOVATION

An online Competence Centre for 3D techniques in cultural heritage, supporting preservation, education and innovation in the European cultural heritage sector. It offers online courses, a tools directory, a knowledge base and events. Co-funded by the European Union under the Digital Europe Programme.

Skeiron

PRESERVATION · DIGITISATION

Skeiron preserves Ukrainian heritage through digitisation. From laser scanning and drone surveys to 3D models, AR/VR and tactile experiences, the Lviv team turns monuments and museum objects into lasting digital records, and since 2022 has documented heritage at risk through #SaveUkrainianHeritage.

Volyn Foundation

ADVOCACY · NETWORKING · POPULARISATION

Volyn Foundation brings heritage closer to people and to the world. Since 2017, the Lutsk-based organisation has popularised the cultural and natural heritage of Volyn, advocated for Ukrainian heritage internationally and connected Ukrainian initiatives with European networks such as 3D-4CH.
